Electricity sold to metered customers for their primary source of residential heat is not taxable during the billing months of November through April. When more than one type of heat is used, electricity is not taxable if it is the primary source of heat. Primary source of residential heat is the source which supplies more heat than any other source for the largest period of time during the heating season.

See the Minnesota Department of Revenue Sales Tax Fact Sheet 157, revised November 2017, at www.revenue.state.mn.us for more detailed information.

Our records indicate that you may use electricity as your primary residential heat source, however we do not have a signed heating fuel exemption certificate from you on file. If you qualify for this exemption please sign, date, detach and return the form below to our office as soon as possible. If electric is not your primary heat source, please disregard. Thank you.
